Teachers -- Do you ever find that there isn't enough class time to cover all aspects of teaching applicable software and hardware, while still providing your students with an artistically viable education?

Students -- Do you ever need extra time out of class to practice skills related to any aspect of your education?

Staff -- Are you looking for an easy way to improve your on-the-job work skills?

Everyone -- Wish you could learn new software and hardware at your own pace, but might not have time to attend a specific face-to-face on-campus workshop?

We have the answer for you!

We are pleased to announce that Columbia College Chicago is providing the entire faculty, staff and student population with an all-inclusive online learning opportunity through Lynda.com, the leader in e-training worldwide. To access it:

Log into OASIS and click on the Training tab. Then click the Lynda.com link.

Please take time to enjoy this incredible opportunity. Normally, this would be a $375 per individual subscription, available to you for FREE. There are literally hundreds of online courses waiting to be discovered by the passionate, talented population at Columbia College Chicago!

This new application is sponsored by the Information Technology and Academic Technology departments.
